Legislators Hope To Adjourn Special Session Saturday

Both Houses Announce Progress in Breaking of Deadlock

LONG BILL IS KILLED

House Bill Authorizing Pay for Members Also Defeated

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Hopes of legislators for adjournment of the special session late Saturday was brightened by an announcement by the conference committees of the two houses that they were making progress to break a deadlock over the highway audit measure.

As the senate definitely killed the Long cotton prohibition bill and the house a measure authorizing pay for the legislators despite a pledge by a majority to serve without pay the conference committees agreed upon the rejection of one of three audit bill amendments which precipitated the deadlock.

This amendment would limit the audit commissions expenditures to $100,000 preventing a deficiency proclamation by the governor for additional expenditures.

The senate killed the Long plan by a vote of 15 to 12 and the pay bill by 14 to 10.

Two amendments still being discussed, would prevent members of the audit commission from running for office for the next two years and would require two members of the commission or two auditors to be present at hearings at which testimony is taken in any investigation of the highway department.

Shortage Charged To Stone Sheriff

Auditors Refuse to Reveal the Amount Alleged Due From Sam Johnson

MOUNTAINVIEW.—Auditors, working under J. Bryan Sims of Little Rock, chief accountant of the state Auditorial Department, completed the audit of the books of Sam Johnson, sheriff and collector of stone county. Friday and reported a shortage in his accounts through failure to settle with the county, but would not reveal the amount.

Many irregularities are charged, and Hugh Williams, former prosecuting attorney, named to represent the prosecuting attorney's office, began taking testimony of witnesses in regard to the alleged irregularities. H. R. Case, Cragg Parsons and Neal Morris testified, and others will be heard soon.

County Judge John H. Gray agreed to place a citation on record demanding a complete settlement by Sheriff Johnson. Johnson was out of town and could not be located for a statement.

An audit also is being made of the books of County Treasurer T. P. Jefferson, but the auditors would not say whether they suspected a shortage in his accounts.

The present audit of Sheriff Johnson's books covered the last five years, the time that he has been in office. An audit of his books was made last year and they were found to be in good condition, and when the audit was begun this year Johnson objected to it covering the last five years of office, claiming that only this year's books should be checked.

Jefferson has been in office four years.

DES MOINES, Ia.—(P)—William Scrivener, whose companion, Adelbert McCabe, was shot and killed here Friday in a hotel by a detective when he resisted arrest, waived extradition and will be returned to Houston, Tex., to face charges of bank robbery. McCabe was said by police to be wanted in Memphis, Tenn., on charges of bank robbery and murder. Both men, according to Texas officials, were named in a confession made by Barney McGanegall to Houston police as the slayers of C. A. (Keggy) Jones, a gangster, and his wife, in a Houston apartment, August 21.

Detectives went to McCabe's hotel room when informed the two men were machine gun salesmen. Scrivener was not present. McCabe resisted arrest, sought to flee, was shot and killed by Detective Loren Miller. Scrivener was arrested later when he returned to the room.

Scrivener, according to advances received here, was convicted of a payroll robbery in Dallas, Tex., and later pardoned that he might turn state's evidence in a $2,000,000 postoffice robbery at Dallas.

Heavily penalized, Camden lost a total of 80 yards on this account, possibly saving Hope from being scored on twice again.

It was the fourth victory of the season for Camden, and the first defeat in three starts for Hope. A large crowd of local rooters accompanied the team to Camden, returning home Friday night.

Among other state high school football results Friday was North Little Rock's valiant fight against Little Rock, the smaller city holding the larger one to a 13-7 score. Allen swung off before the truck came to a stop, and lost his footing. He fell and struck the back of his head on the hard surface of the highway. Williams brought him to town and he was transferred to the hospital, but never regained consciousness.

Mr. Allen is survived by his wife and two children. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Hijackers Quickly Get Long Terms

Sent to Prison for 25 Years Following Crime of Thursday

DE QUEEN.—George Lambage, aged 21, and Will Adams, 19, of Rogers City, Mich., were sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary Friday morning by Circuit Judge A. P. Steel on charges of assault with intent to kill and robbery, in connection with the slugging of Noel Runyan, 20, auto salesman of DeQueen.

Runyan said the two youths hailed him for a ride while he was driving to Locksburg. Adams got in the back seat of the Chevrolet sedan and Williams in front. Runyan drove to about three miles west of Locksburg when Adams struck him over the head three times with a blunt instrument. They then threw Runyan over a fence and drove his car toward Locksburg.

Runyan said he never was unconscious and within a few minutes hailed a passing motorist, who took him to Locksburg. Three Locksburg youths, driving a high powered car, passed the hi-jacker car three miles north of Ashdown and blocked the road. Deputies Bob Pierce and Thompson of Ashdown arrested them. They were not armed.

A special grand jury was called, indictments returned and the youths pleaded guilty and were given 15 years on robbery charges and 10 years on the assault charge. They were taken to the penitentiary immediately by Sheriff J. M. Sutton and Deputy Roy Hooper.

Earnshaw Holds Cards To 5 Hits But Is Defeated

Watkins Gets Homer With Andy High on Base in Third

MARTIN IS HITLESS

Fails to Break Series Record—Tied With 12 Hits

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, St. Louis.—The St. Louis Cardinals won the 1931 World Series here Saturday afternoon, capturing the seventh and deciding game from the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 2.

Burleigh Grimes, left, of the sport ball pitchers except old Urban Shocker of the Chicago White Sox, held the Athletics scoreless until a thrilling rally in the first half of the ninth, when with two out, two runs, across the plate, and the tying run on base, he gave way to "Wild Bill" Hallahan, who forced Max Bishop to fly out. "Pepper" Martin, in center field, hit the last out.

But Grimes got credit for the victory, a decisive victory in a hurling duel with George Earnshaw. The Cardinals scored two runs off Earnshaw in the first and third innings, which, which Grimes had saved him, the Cardinals' lead was 2-0. Grimes, who had pitched a perfect game in the first game, pitched a complete game, but the Cardinals' 5 hits yielded 4 runs. An error by Cochrane in the first let in an extra run, and Watkins' homer in the third scored Andy High ahead of him, making the score 4 to 0 at that time.

A's Crack in Field
While Earnshaw allowed the Cards to connect too solidly in the first and third innings, the Athletics' teamwork was faulty also. Cochrane's error let in a run in the opener, when the Cards made two singles and a walk and error yielded two scores.

St. Louis' first big moment came in the third inning when Watkins, right-fielder, lifted a terrific home run into the bleacher wall, scoring Andy High ahead of him and making the tally 4 to 0 in favor of the Cardinals. The Athletics got two hits in the second, but both men died on base. Before the start of the game, Manager Gabby Street surprised the crowd by announcing that Orsatti would go out leftfield for Chick Hefey, batting champion of the National League.

Martin's Record
Statistics produced an interesting story for "Pepper" Martin. Up to Saturday's game he had hit safely 12 times in 21 times at bat, and needed but one more safety to break the all-time World Series record for hits.

On the Athletics' side, "Dib" Williams, an Arkansas product, had a record of 6 hits in 20 times at bat. Up to Saturday's game, the Athletics were charged with but one error. St. Louis had made four.

The lineup:
Philadelphia: Bishop, 2b; Haas, cf; Cochrane, c; Simmons, 1b; Fox, 1b; Miller, 1b; Dykes, 3b; Williams, ss; Earnshaw, p.

St. Louis: High, 3b; Watkins, rf; Frisch, 2b; Martin, cf; Orsatti, lf; Bottrimes, 1b; Wilson, c; Gelbert, ss; Grimes, p.

Score by innings:
St. Louis . . . 2 0 0 0 0 0 4-5-1

First Inning
Philadelphia: Bishop fouled out to third base. Haas was out on a ground-er to second. Cochrane went out on

Hunger and Revolt

WHEN William Green reminded the American Federation of Labor the other day that "revolutions grow out of the depths of hunger," he touched on a simple truth with which every student of history is familiar.

And yet that statement, by itself, is incomplete. Hunger does not breed revolutions until the ordinary man has lost all hope that his hunger will ever be appeased. Hunger must join hands with despair before it can result in violence.

That, probably, is why real revolutions are such rare events. There has always been hunger, since the first cave man had to poke around in last week's bone pile for something to gnaw on, and starvation has always been a very real possibility to a certain percentage of the earth's population. But revolutions, all things considered, do not take place very often.

Perhaps that is the most surprising part of it all. The human race will stand a good deal of kicking around before it loses its fists. If the meek are to inherit the earth, the common man will surely come into riches some day, for meekness is one of his outstanding characteristics. The patience with which human beings will put up with hunger, privation and injustice is one of the most amazing things in all history.

There is something rather significant in this. Without knowing it the ordinary person has a good streak of the doctrine of non-resistance in his heart. Gandhi, who cries that non-violence is worth having if it must be fought for, knows more about human nature than the believers in strong armies realize.

Most of us have moments in which we are neither sure why we are here nor confident that anything worth getting his head of us. But meanwhile we can make a go of it, if only we can contrive somehow to get enough to eat, a cozy place to call home and a little leisure for love and laughter. This goal may not be a very lofty one; yet the race as a whole clings to it with a fidelity that is astounding.

And hunger? Well, revolutions grow in its depths, as Mr. Green says; but it has to be hunger of an appalling intensity, coupled with a despair whose blackness blots out even this humble little dream of ours. Otherwise we shall simply complain a bit, think dark thoughts in private—and make the best of it.

Watching the Road

THE newspapers recently published an extremely instructive picture of an automobile accident—or, rather, of two accidents.

One car had gone into a ditch, through some luckless accident or other. Another car passed by. The driver craned his neck to see the first accident, forgot to keep both eyes on the road ahead, and presently his car was wrecked, too.

This sort of thing happens rather often; and it ought to be an object lesson to all motorists. Looking at the sights along the way is very well, but the driver's first job is to watch where he is going. He let other things distract his attention at his peril.

If you see a car in the ditch, and feel the need of inspecting it closely, park your own car first—or you may land in the ditch yourself and take some unoffending fellow-motorist with you.—El Dorado News.

Making Pancakes

AT a recent food show in Los Angeles there was displayed a nice shiny machine which turns out pancakes automatically—turns them out in large quantities, too, delivering 35 on the platter every minute.

This, no doubt, is a triumph of modern ingenuity. Yet there were certain housewives, back on the farm in the old days, who—while they might have longed earnestly for such a machine—would hardly have been impressed by its productive capacity.

Cooking breakfast for a dozen hungry men in harvest time, the farmer's wife learned things about turning out pancakes in quantity that might make an inventor pause. The whole stove, properly greased and heated, became a griddle. The cakes went to the table in great stacks. Perhaps no housewife ever made as many as 35 a minute—but, the figure, among the experts, certainly wasn't far below that mark.

Calvin Coolidge's recent article in which he attempted to remove himself from consideration as a further presidential possibility is, as was expected, being subjected to close scrutiny to see whether or not he meant what he said. He seems to have failed to convince some people with his several thousand words just as he failed to convince them with a few words back in 1927. The ex-president could win under wraps in a contest to pick America's most misunderstood man.—Jonesboro Sun.

The Yanks Are Coming!

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Once upon a time our government appeared to cherish a theory that we and Great Britain, acting in concert, could rule the international world.

Translated into a major item of our foreign relations policies, the program of Anglo-American understanding enraged France to the point that for years she has been a thorny stumbling block in every American effort which involved European co-operation.

Finally the French position—military, economic and financial—has become so strong and the position of Britain—crippled and virtually at the mercy of the French—gold hoard—so proportionately weak that the need of a change in method is so obvious that it can no longer be ignored.

Hence President Hoover's invitation to Premier Laval. We are in for a series of personal conferences at which disarmament, debts and reparations and the general agenda of Franco-American relations will be discussed. The French insist this is the first time we have been willing to listen.

AS late as last June they were complaining that they had again been presented with an accomplished fact, without advance consultation, in the Hoover moratorium proposal. It seemed to be a repetition of the old story of our Anglo-American understanding which had ignored France's anxious days of negotiation which followed at Paris appeared to demonstrate finally that, whatever the merits of our position in various attempts, we couldn't get away with that sort of thing. Our high officials are no fonder of France, but what with the sad plight of our British friends, the fact that France now almost completely dominates Europe and shares with us possession of three-fourths of all the gold, and the vital necessity of French co-operation in any successful disarmament conference or any extension of the moratorium, it's no wonder that Hoover is glad to confer with Laval. The French appear to be even more delighted because they feel their European pre-eminence has at last been recognized.

The patriotic explanation from some sources here, attributes the coming Hoover-Laval meeting to French fears arising from diminishing popularity of France in the United States. It can't be overlooked. Since the war France has consistently thumbed her nose at everyone who wouldn't play according to her rules and the theory that she could be coerced by world opinion or any other feasible form of pressure has been disproved again and again.

THE Anglo-American understanding, made possible by the fact that policies of the two nations coincided in the main, was in effect during the two periods in which England was ruled by Ramsay MacDonald's Labor government. The Tories, during their intervening term of power, appeared to prefer to play ball with France. It was in that period that we had our abortive 1927 Geneva naval conference with the British and that the short-lived Anglo-French naval agreement was hatched. Afterward MacDonald became premier again, crossed the ocean to talk with Hoover prior to the London naval conference and France, again aggrieved, went to the conference with a chip on her shoulder.

During the post-war era, France, regardless of what she considered the British-American setup against her, has strengthened her great military machine, established a hegemony of smaller satellite nations, occupied the Ruhr and rubbed Germany's nose in the dirt as often as possible, squawked louder than any other country about paying war debts, restricted results of the Washington naval conference to a limitation of capital ships, refused to attend the Geneva conference, prevented a successful conclusion of the London conference, demanded more and more security concessions, held up the Hoover moratorium and built up a huge gold supremacy in Europe.

It remains to be seen whether France will be more amiable now that she seems to be getting the consideration she has always demanded. She has demanded a lot of other things, too, and it is impossible to guess what may be achieved after Laval explains some of them to Hoover.

Our New Community Hospital.

It has been the purpose of the Hope and Hempstead County Hospital Association from the day of its organization to establish a hospital in our community which would be available to all our people regardless of their ability to pay. The organization and the members of the Executive Board are giving of their time and efforts and money to this end solely because of their desire to help those who are not financially able to secure the benefits of hospital service and care, and that each beneficiary secure the same treatment and care as those who are able to pay for it.

Our larger cities, recognizing the obligation resting upon them to make provision for the sick and afflicted of their city who are unable to pay for such treatment and service as is offered by privately-owned hospitals, establish and maintain city hospitals. The expense of running these hospitals is provided for in the annual budget. There are in cities of 50,000 or more a sufficient number of cases to justify a hospital for the treatment and care of charity cases only. In cities of less than 50,000 population such cases can be provided for only in partially self-supporting hospitals. The actual expense in the treatment and care of patients who are unable to pay must be provided for either by charity disposed individuals, charity organizations or municipal funds.

Our local organization, with faith and a glorious vision, have begun the erection of a hospital building which it is believed will meet all the requirements of the community. Those having the work in charge are deserving of the hearty support of all our citizens.

Not only this, but our county and city governments should make provision, by adequate appropriation, for the hospitalization of all citizens within our bonds who are not able to bear the expense themselves.

We, as citizens, owe to ourselves and the unfortunate poor, that service and help that will enable the sick to recover their health.

The hospital, as it has ever been under the management of the association, will continue to open its doors to all surgeons and doctors for the practice of their profession, and will do everything in its power to serve all ask for admittance. It should be made possible for every sufferer, regardless of race, color or financial condition, to receive the very best medical and hospital service. How near we shall come to meeting this obligation and realizing the Christ-like ideal of those who are making great sacrifices and giving of their time and labors to this end will depend upon the support received from our citizenship.

A Citizen.

Murder Trial at Harrisburg Begun

Charles ("Scarface") McCullars Accused of Killing Young Mardis

HARRISBURG—Evidence in the case of Charles ("Scarface") McCullars, aged 40, was started when Poinsett Circuit Court opened Thursday morning. Fifteen witnesses were used during the day by the state, and several more will testify. It probably will be late Monday when the case goes to the jury.

The state charges that McCullars shot and killed Agnew Mardis while riding in a car with him, and threw his body into a ditch near the road. It was found by Cecil Williams, a farmer, who testified to finding the body and notifying officers.

G. A. Clark, farmer, said that McCullars was with Mardis on the morning of the murder, and several witnesses testified that McCullars was the man seen with Mardis about one hour before the body was found.

The defense maintains that McCullars was in Texas at the time. McCullars was arrested in Texas by Poinsett county officers. His home is near Nettleton, 25 miles from here. Mardis was the son of Senator J. J. Mardis.

Alonzo Butler Given One Year Prison Term

DEQUEEN, Ark.—Found guilty of assault with intent to kill in the wounding August 26 of Hunter Greer, 23-year-old Lockesburg youth, Alonzo Butler, 20, also of Lockesburg, was sentenced to one year in the state penitentiary Friday in circuit court here.

The case was given to the jury late Thursday and they retired without returning a verdict.

Charges against Butler grew out of a fight at Lockesburg between his father and another son, Greer, attempted to separate the two fighters and young Butler hurled a rock at him, striking him in the head and knocking him unconscious. Greer remained in a serious condition for several days after being struck.

Butler was indicted by a special grand jury Wednesday and went on trial Thursday morning.

"Cowboy" Kyle Is Piano Player

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—Winning "Cowboy" Kyle, whose thrilling runs for touchdowns last season are still fresh in the minds of Razorback rooters, is playing his third and last year on the University of Arkansas eleven.

Kyle is one of the most colorful Razorback football stars of recent years. His broken field running last year was spectacular, sports writers calling him the "most dangerous back in the Southwest." When Kyle took the ball the stands invariably rose to their feet, because the blonde blizzard always furnished a thrill on his dashes around end.

Freckles and His Friends By Blosser

Your Best Friend!

THE MATTER WITH GRAY MATTER

SOCIETY

Mrs. Sid Henry Telephone 321

It is worth while that we jostle a brother
Bearing his load on the rough road of life?
Is it worth while that we jeer at each other
In blackness of heart—that we war to the knife?
Oblivion us all in our pitiful strife.
Look at the roses saluting each other!
Look at the beads all at peace on the plains!
Men, and man only, makes war on a brother
And fights in his heart at his peril and pain.
Showered by the beasts that go down on the plain
Is it worth while that we battle to humble
Some poor fellow soldier down into the dust?
God pity us all! Time soon will tumble
All of us together, like leaves in a gust,
Humbled indeed down into the dust.

"MAD MARRIAGE"

"The first place to start is with the opposition to Mrs. VAWDAV, millionaire's son, in the early twenties. At that time, Mrs. VAWDAV was a well-known figure in the community, and her son was a prominent figure in the business world. The opposition to Mrs. VAWDAV was a result of her son's actions, which were seen as a betrayal of the family name. The opposition was led by a group of people who were concerned about the future of the family name and the community. They were determined to bring down Mrs. VAWDAV and her son, and they succeeded in their efforts. The opposition was a major factor in the downfall of Mrs. VAWDAV and her son, and it is a lesson that should be learned by all who are interested in the future of the family name and the community."
